Benevolence and Economy of American Colportage.—New York, April 21, 1859.

The Rev. RUSSELL S. COOK.—Dear Sir: Attacks against the system of the American Tract Society in the production and circulation of its publications have lately been made and widely circulated, so you doubtless know. Friends of the Society have had the pleasure of writing in in answer, that an important task is to be discharged in thoroughly examining and testing the charges before the public. Your former connection with the Tract Society and with tract circulation both in England and in this country, points you out as most qualified to undertake this task. Your knowledge of the tract system and your sympathy for its measures, will render your examination the more serviceable to our cause.

We, therefore, request that you would, if your other avocations do not permit, give us a full examination of the whole subject involved.

With great respect, we are yours and servants, DANIEL LORD, W. H. WALLACE, H. R. CUTTING, L. M. BROWN, WILLIAM DOIGE, STEWART BROWN, ALFRED EDWARDS, GREENE C. BRONSON, LUCAS HOPKINS, JAMES DONALDSON, JAMES E. BURMAN, J. O. HALSTED.

The Rev. Mr. COOK has responded to this note in an eloquent and able review of the letters of the Rev. Dr. Pattison, and a searching comparison of the London and American Tract Society's system of production and circulation, which will appear at length in the next number of "THE JOURNAL."
